Course Description

This course aims to familiarize students with the field of moral philosophy, with both the cornerstones in its history and certain pressing debates today. It is organized in two parts. The first part provides a background in traditional approaches. It examines moral relativism, virtue ethics, deontology, and consequentialism. With that background, the second part then focuses on the criticisms of these traditional views and on key contemporary discussions in moral philosophy. It addresses issues such as human enhancement, animal rights, deep ecology, and global justice, among others. In both parts, the reading are selected from the main figures in the areas.

Course Requirements and Grading

Grading:

Attendance: %10

In-class Quizzes: %15

Group Presentations: %10

Midterm: %30

Final: %35

Attendance and Participation:

Class attendance is mandatory. Attendance follow-up starts at the end of the add-drop period. After 2 unexcused hours your attendance grade will fall by 1 point with every unexcused absence. (That is to say, with 3 unexcused absences you get a 9/10, with 4 you get 8/10, etc.) Students who miss 9 hours of class in total will receive a “0” for their attendance grade.

Absences for medical reasons are to be documented with a doctor's report, and acceptance of medical reports are due to instructor approval.

An absence may also count as excused in case a life situation that you need to attend arises: in such cases please email me beforehand, if possible.

In order to take a make up exam, the medical report must be submitted within 3 days after the original exam date.

Thoughtful and meaningful participation in class is highly encouraged. Outstanding contribution to the class and proof of engagement with the course material beyond course requirements may bring your final course grade up by half a letter (thus bringing it up from a B- to a B, for example), at the instructor's discretion.

In-class Quizzes:

There will be unannounced quizzes during class time. There will be no make ups for missed quizzes. If a student is absent on the day we have a quiz but they have emailed me before class to let me know about their excuse, that quiz will not be included in their quiz average. Anyone who is absent without an excuse will automatically get a zero on that quiz.

Group Presentations:

We will have group presentations in the last week of class. During the semester the students will form presentation groups and decide on the topics they want to present on. (I encourage you to talk to me as soon as you begin thinking about a topic. We can even brainstorm about it in class, about how to treat it as an issue in moral philosophy, and everyone can benefit.) The students are to then submit a one-page outline of their research with their topic and group members' names by Thursday, November 24th. Everyone in the group is expected to contribute to both the preparation and the presentation stages.

- The presentations are to:
introduce the subject,
explain the prominent approaches to it,
focus on one or two specific questions,
lay out the main discussions around them,
talk about what the group thought and discussed about these questions, what they found enlightening, interesting, challenging, and/or confusing, and finally offer two or three questions to open the topic up to discussion.

- The presentation outlines are to include:
the names of the group members,
the working title of the presentation,
a brief description of the subject to be presented, and a preliminary list of the resources to be used.

Midterm and Final Exams:

Midterm and Final exams will be held face to face.
